

Rare and Atypical Diabetes Network (RADIANT) Data Archive

The Rare and Atypical DIAbetes NeTwork (RADIANT) is a multicenter prospective cohort study that is dedicated to characterizing (discovering and defining) rare and atypical forms of diabetes. Individuals will be screened for evaluation of suspected atypical diabetes of unknown origin. Among the pool of evaluated individuals, those found to have a known form of diabetes will be excluded from further study. The remaining participants will be prioritized for genetic/genomic analysis and further testing.
